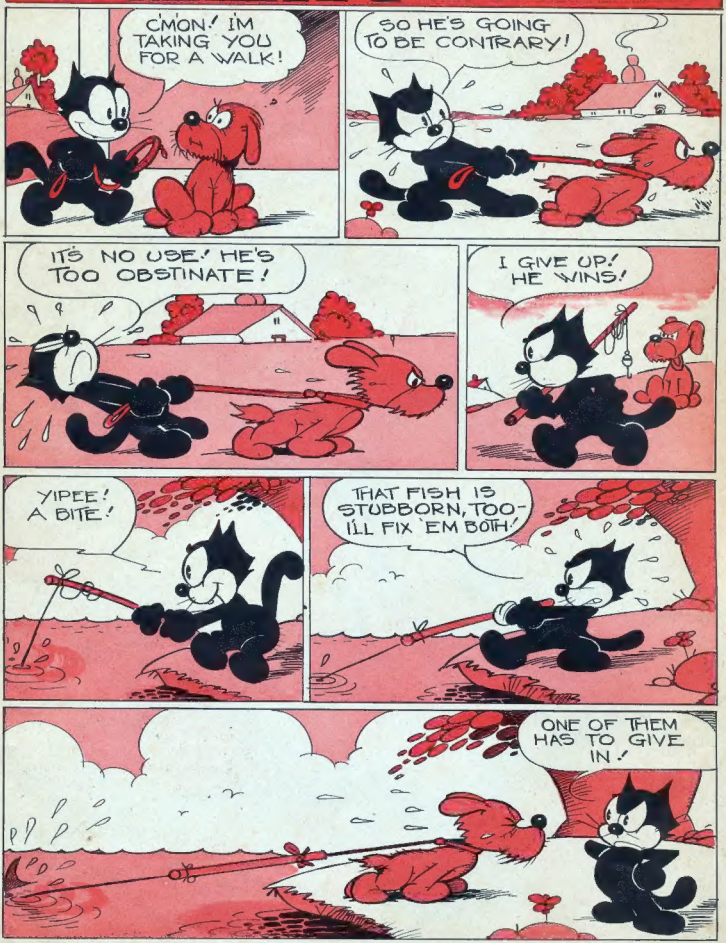
Felix the CAT

FELIX the CAT



C'MON! I'M TAKING YOU FOR A WALK!
SO HE'S GOING TO BE CONTRARY!
IT'S NO USE! HE'S TOO OBSTINATE!
I GIVE UP! HE WINS!
YIPEE! A BITE!
THAT FISH IS STUBBORN, TOO- I'LL FIX 'EM BOTH!
ONE OF THEM HAS TO GIVE IN!

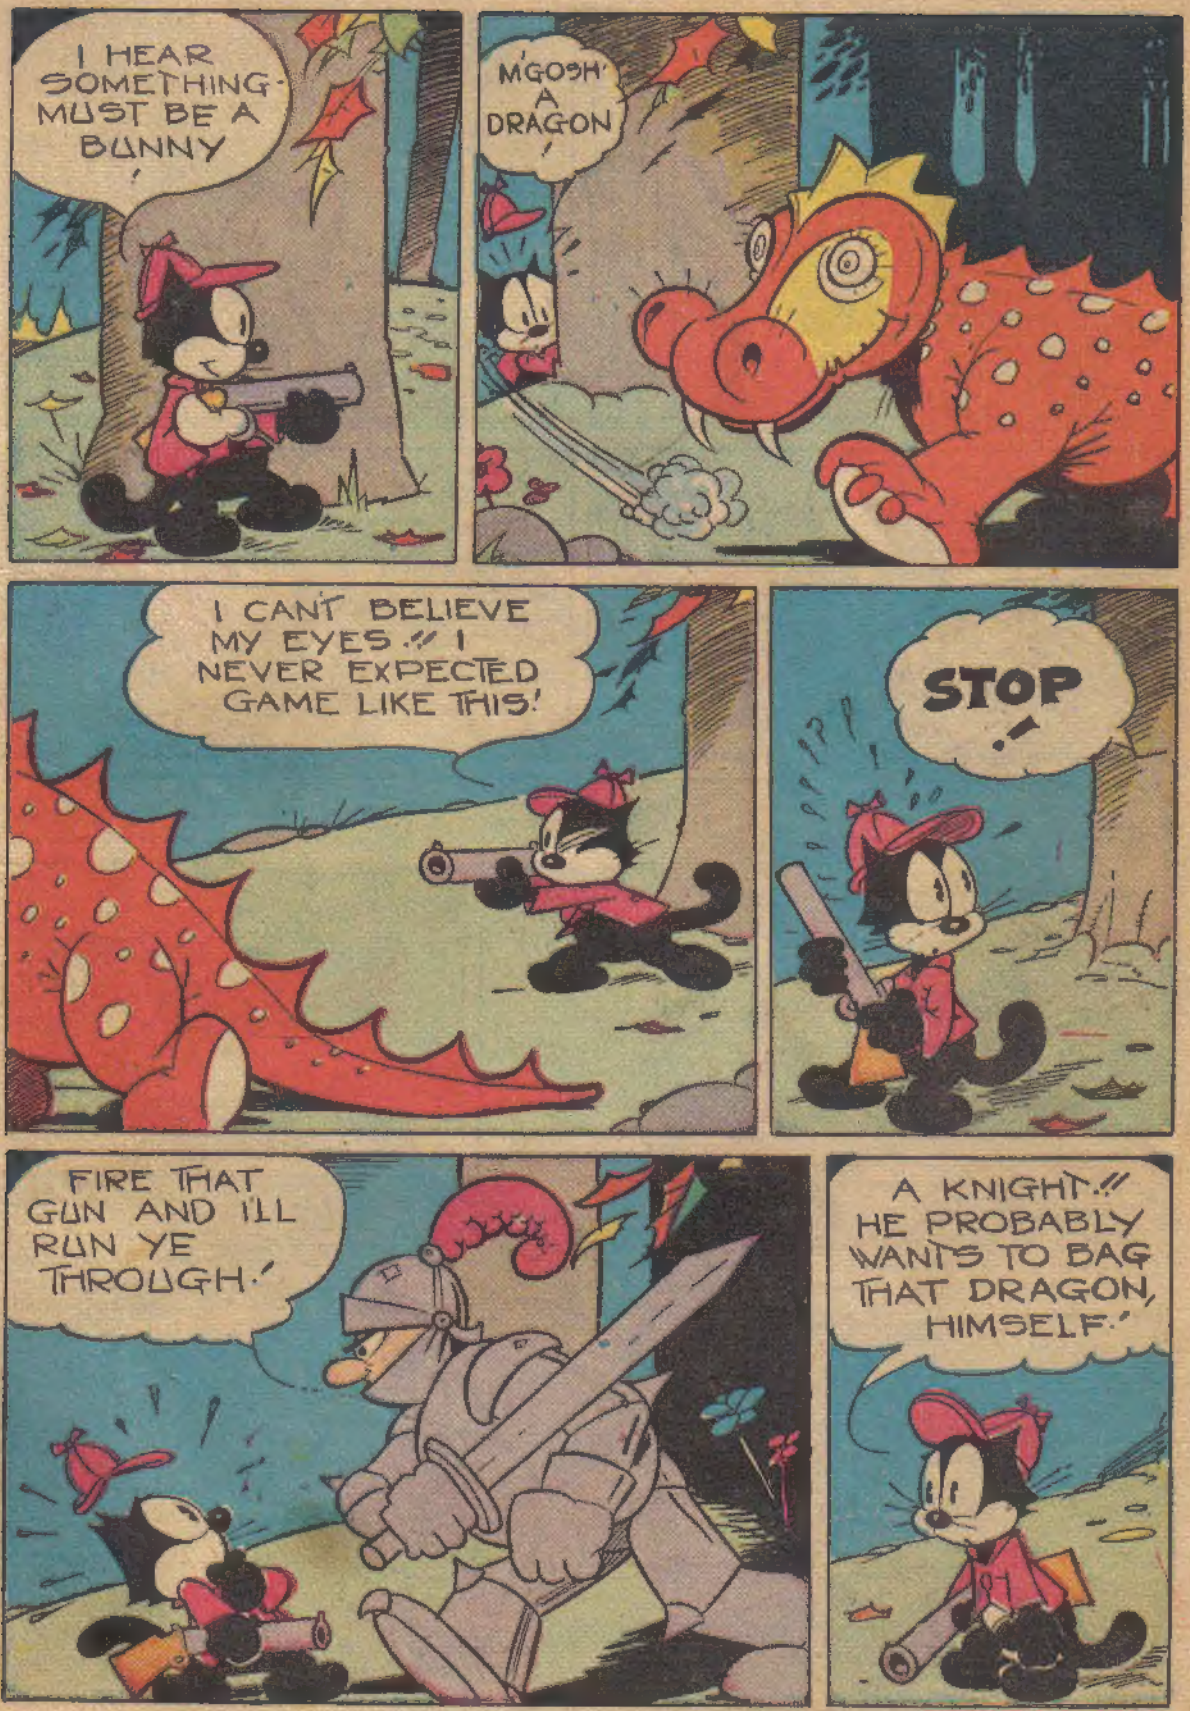
Felix the CAT IN MASK BAWL
GOSH!!
DAYS OLD
THIS SURE IS A THRILLER!
DAYS OLD
THIS SUSPENSE IS TERRIFIC!
DAYS OLD
WHAT A FINISH!
IT MUST HAVE BEEN GREAT TO LIVE LONG AGO!
WHEN PIRATES BOLD SAILED THE SEAS!
AND KNIGHTS IN ARMOR STORMED THE CASTLES!
FELIX ™ & © 1910

IN THOSE DAYS LIFE WAS FULL OF ADVENTURE AND ROMANCE!
BUT TODAY- NO COLORFUL CHARACTERS TO THRILL US!
EVERYTHING IS DULL AND DRAB!
THIS HUMDRUM EXISTENCE BORES ME!
I KNOW WHAT I'LL DO!!
I'LL GO ON A 'COON HUNT!
THIS WILL GIVE ME A BIT OF PASTIME
BESIDES, I'M GETTING HUNGRY!

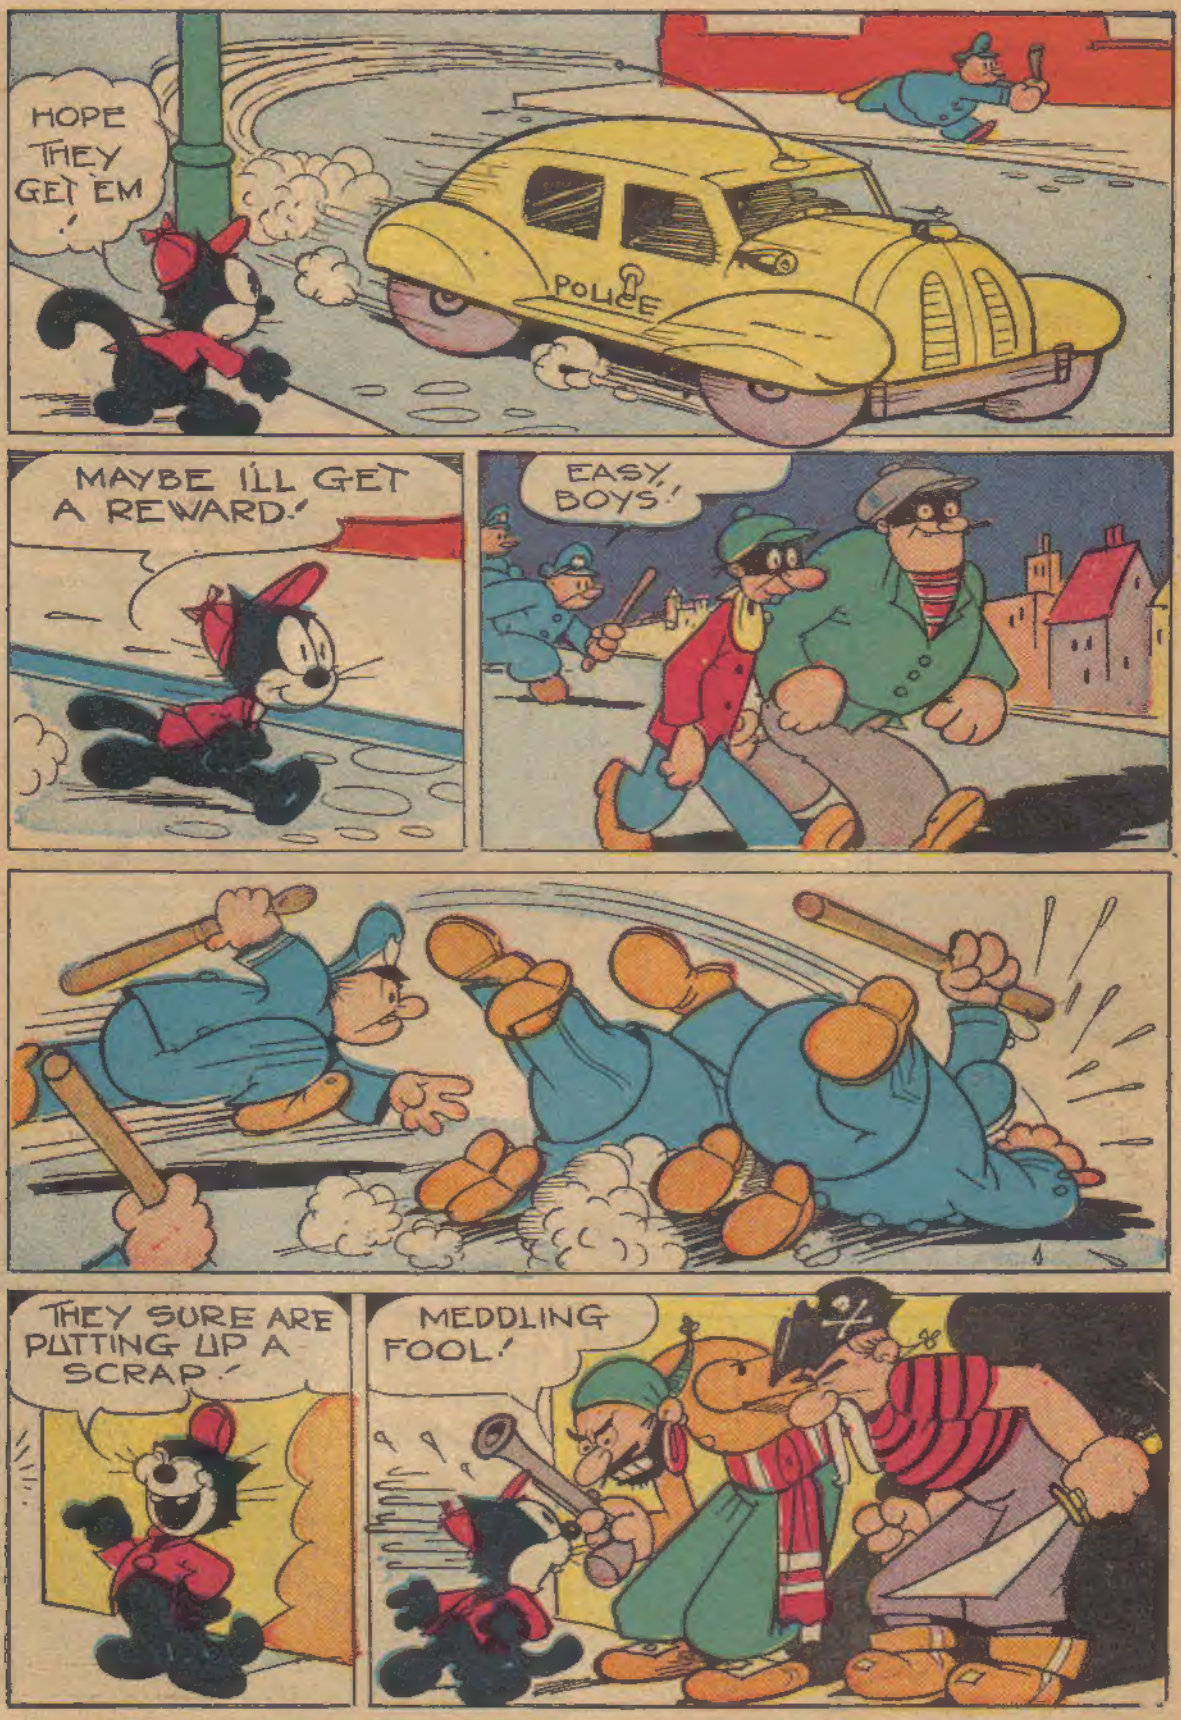


I HEAR SOMETHING· MUST BE A BUNNY!
M'GOSH! A DRAGON!
I CAN'T BELIEVE MY EYES.// I NEVER EXPECTED GAME LIKE THIS!
STOP!
FIRE THAT GUN AND I'LL RUN YE THROUGH·!
A KNIGHT.// HE PROBABLY WANTS TO BAG THAT DRAGON, HIMSELF·!

DRAGONS, KNIGHTS- THOSE THINGS ARE EXTINCT!
IMAGINATION! MUST BE THAT BOOK I READ!
I'VE GOT TO PULL MYSELF TOGETHER!
WHAT'S THAT?
AH! A PHEASANT- NO DOUBT!
THAT GOT 'IM!
BANG
WHAT'S THE IDEA? BUSTING MY HEADPIECE!

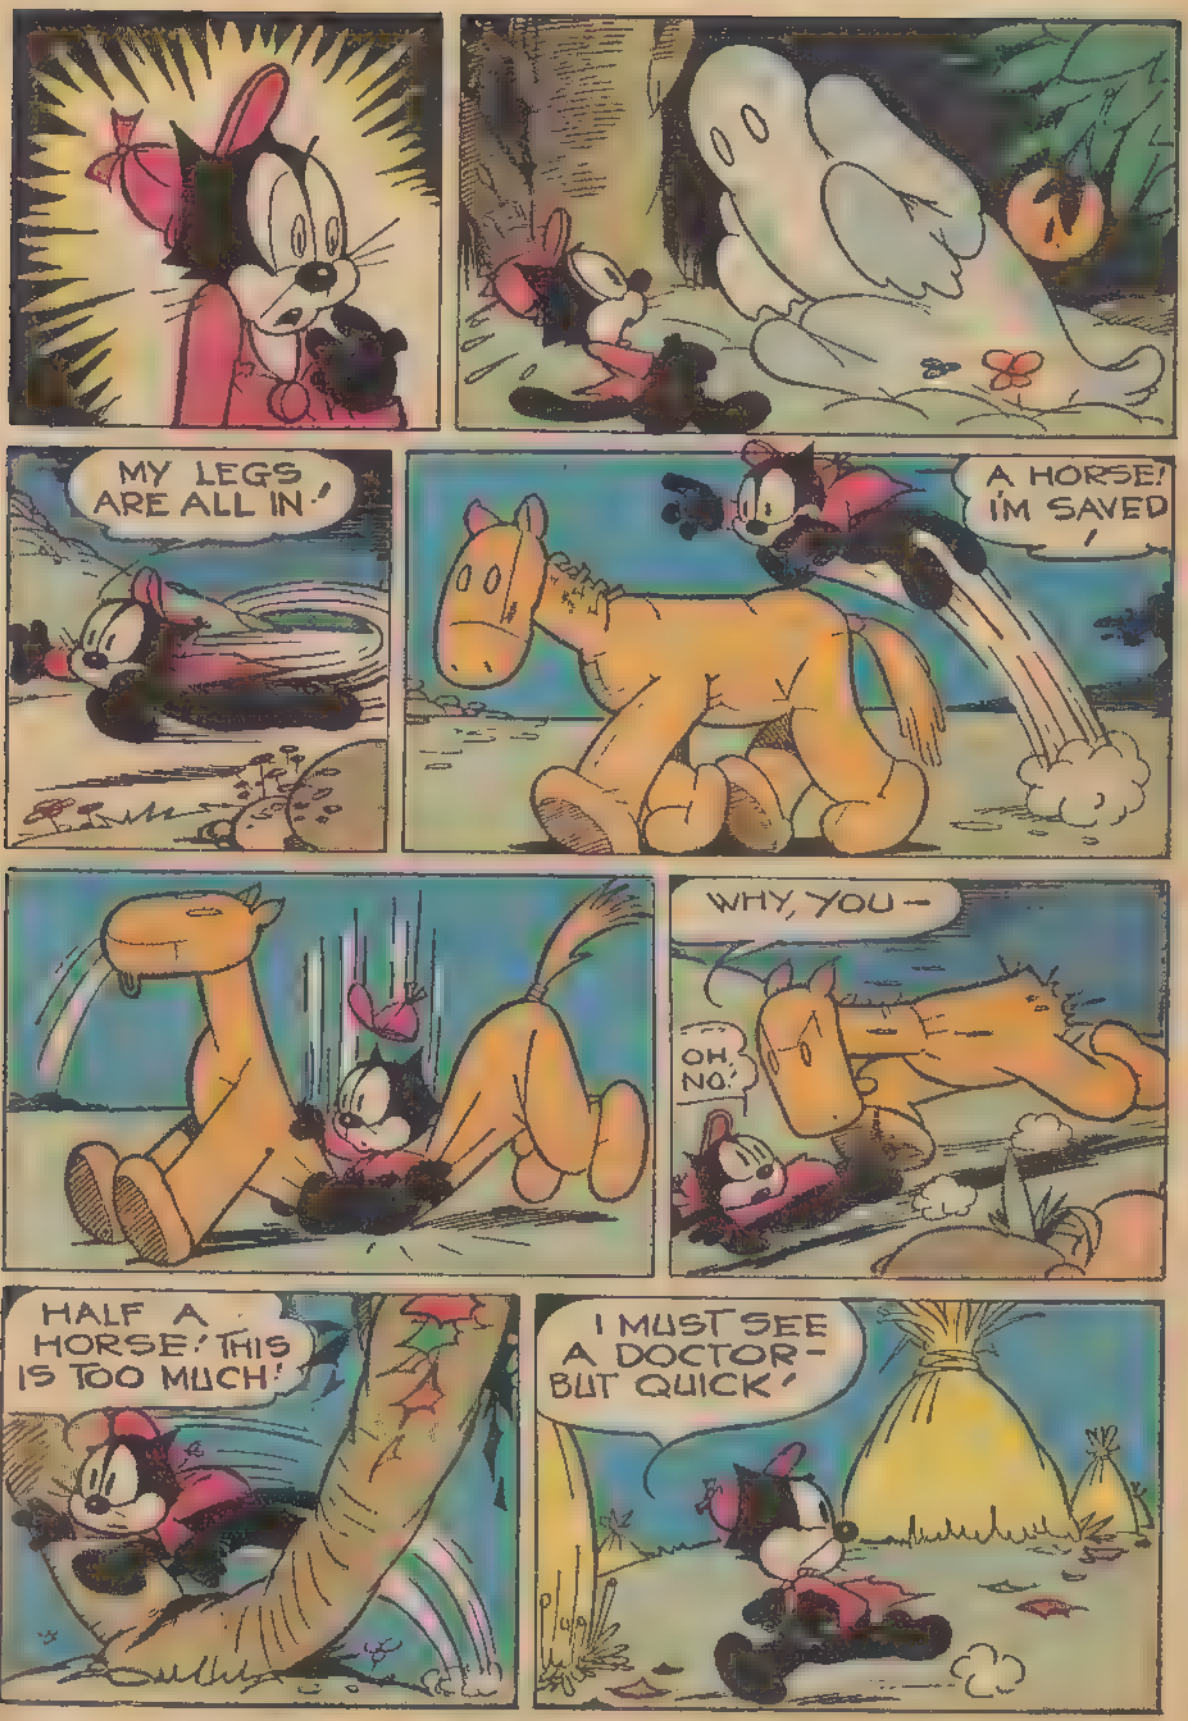
OF ALL THE NERVE!
YOU'RE A MENACE TO PASSERS-BY!
THANK GOODNESS! I ELUDED HIM!
'SNO USE! I KEEP SEEING THINGS!
I'D BETTER GO HOME!

B-B-BURGLARS! M-M-MAIN S-STREET!
TELEPHONE
THANKS FOR THE TIP-OFF!
CALLING ALL CARS!!! PICK UP TWO DANGEROUS CHARACTERS ON MAIN STREET!
CAUTION!! THESE MEN ARE ARMED!
POLICE



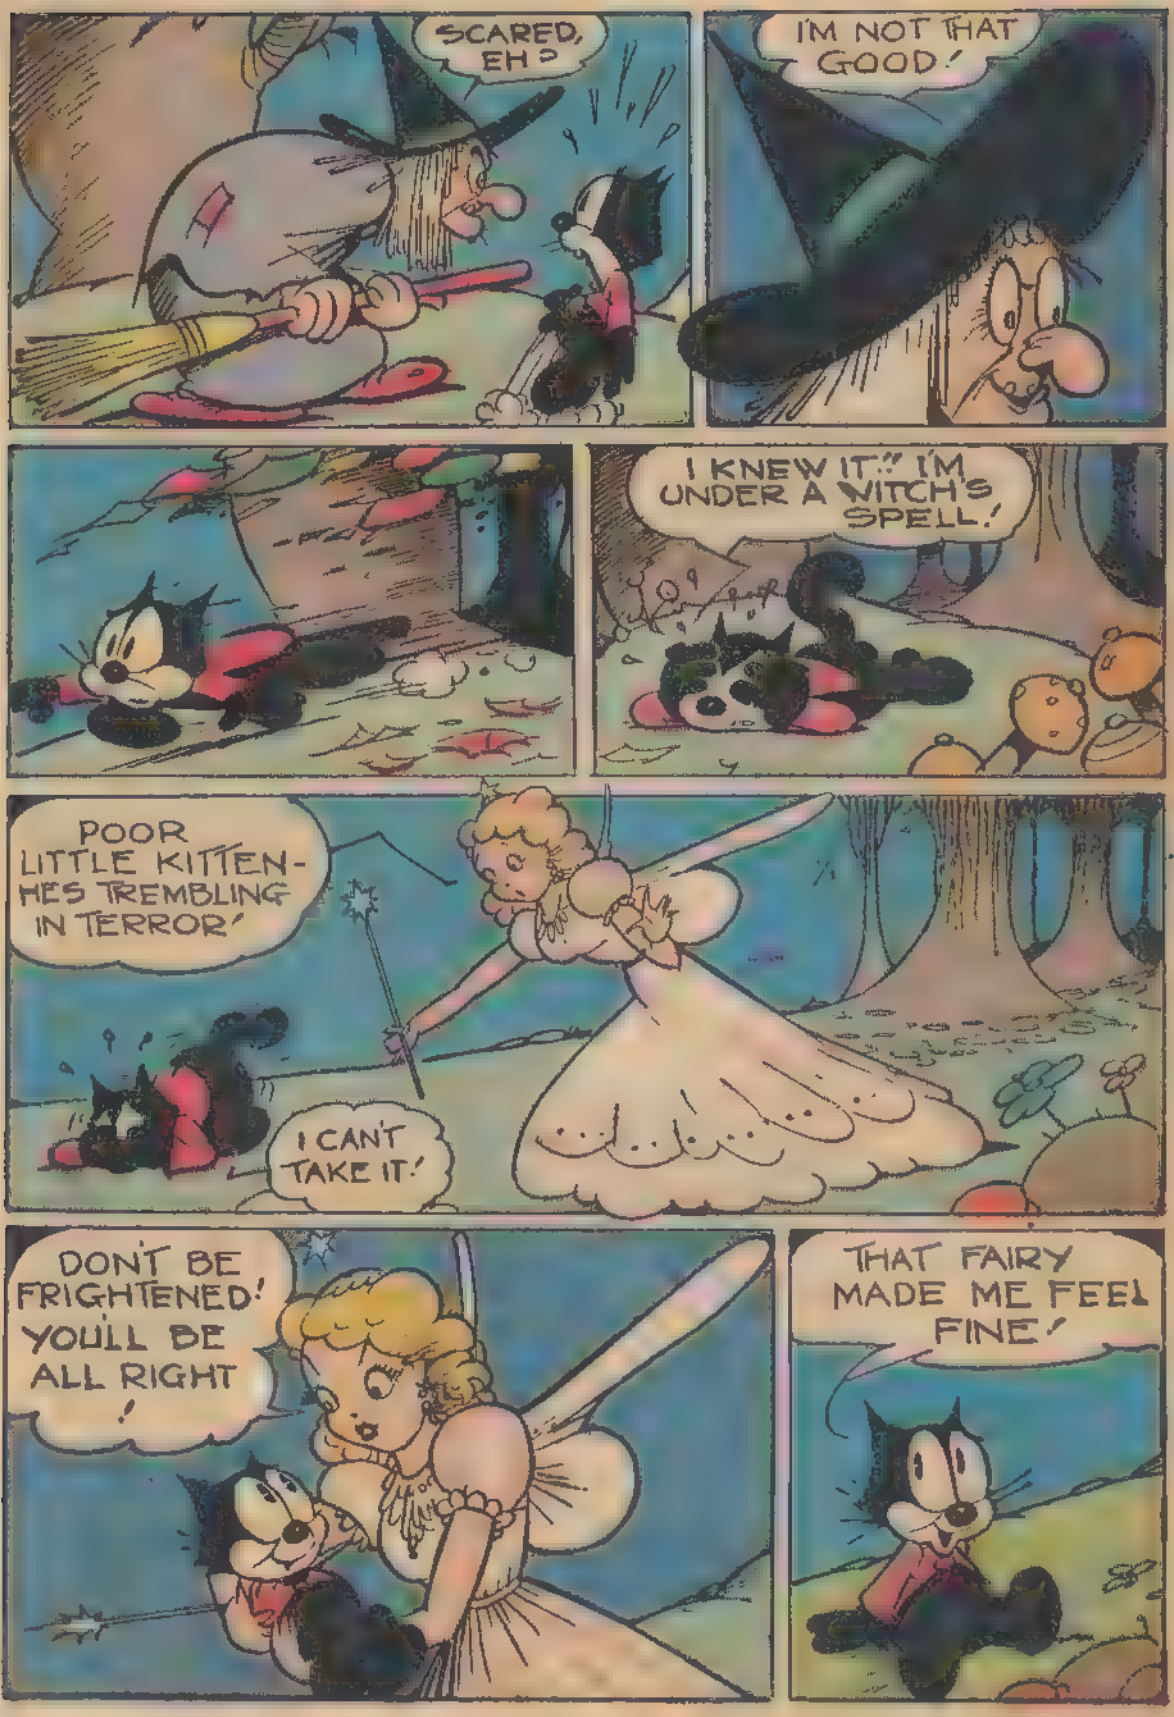
HOPE THEY GET 'EM!
POLICE
MAYBE I'LL GET A REWARD!
EASY, BOYS!
THEY SURE ARE PUTTING UP A SCRAP!
MEDDLING FOOL!

HE'S SPOILING OUR EVENING!
DON'T LET HIM GET AWAY!
MY EYES ARE STILL PLAYING TRICKS!
THEY'LL NEVER GET ME!
THAT FLOP WAS NO ILLUSION!

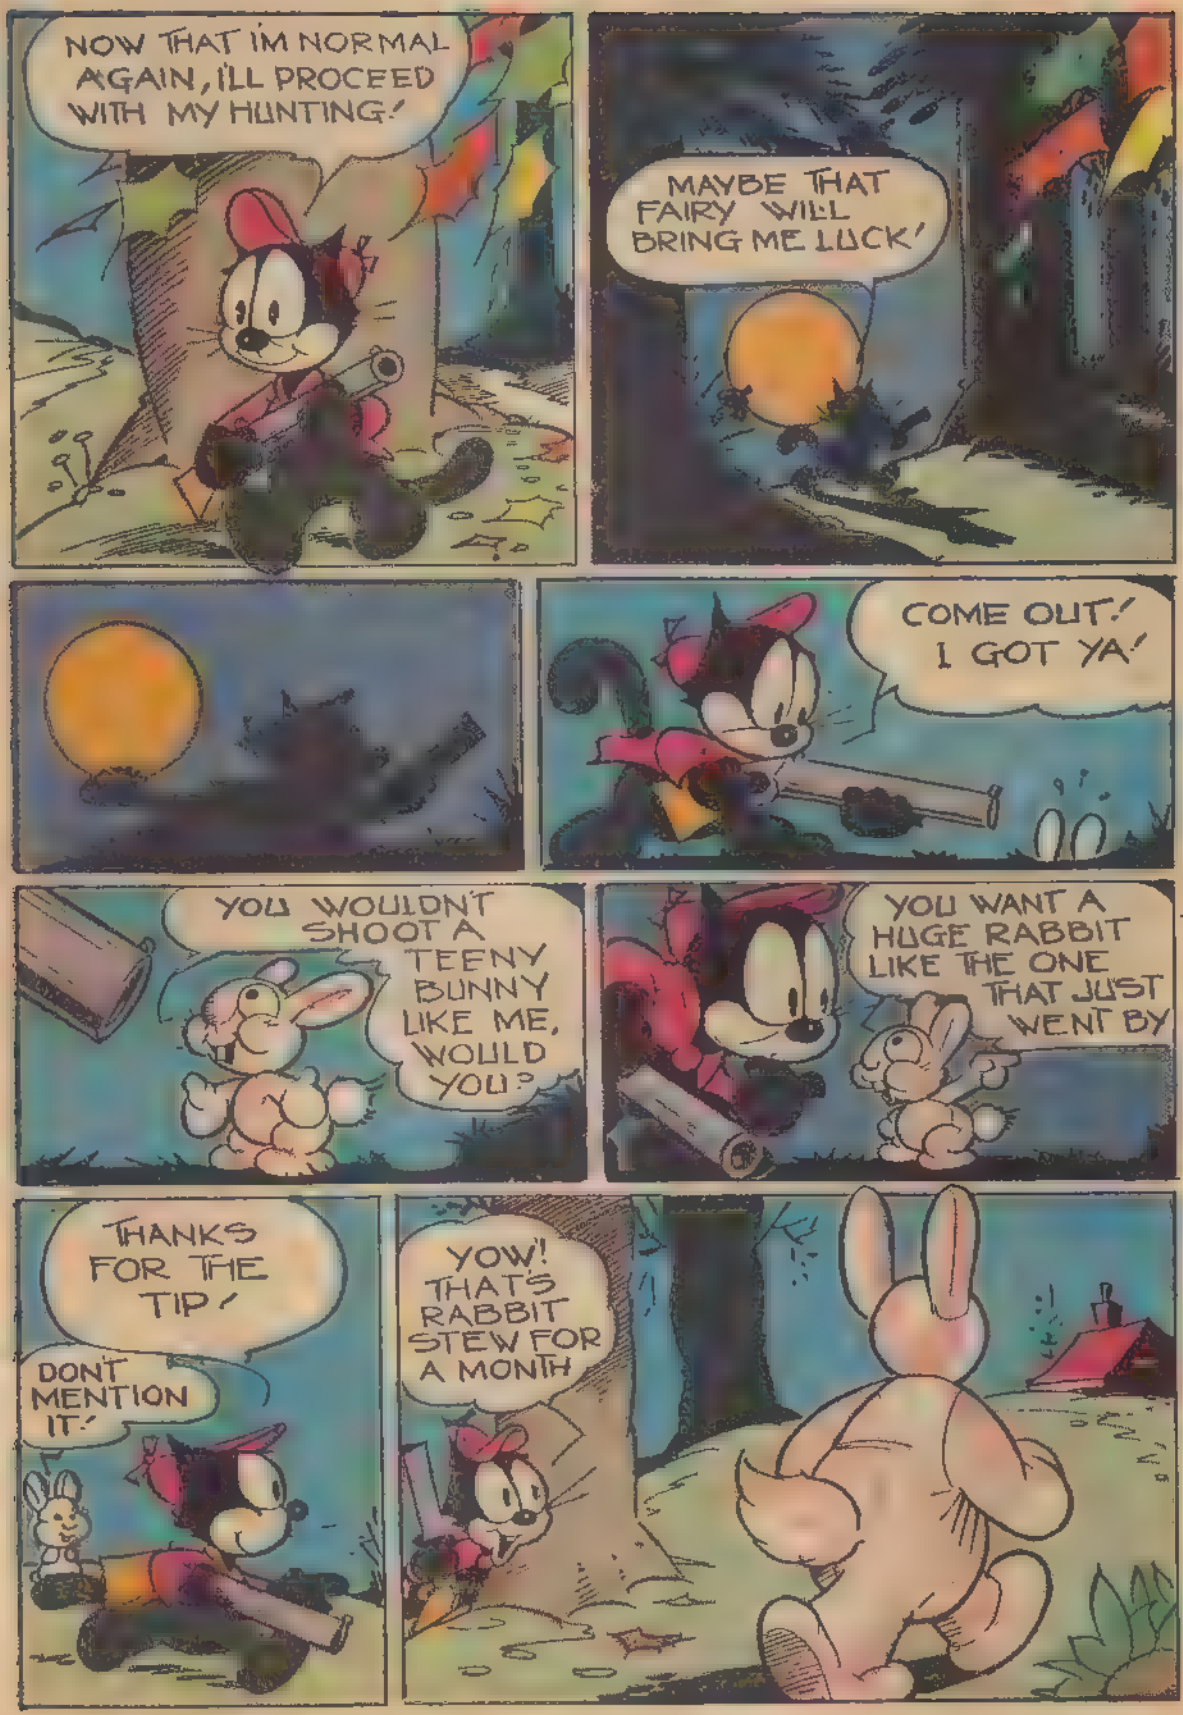


MY LEGS ARE ALL IN!
A HORSE! I'M SAVED!
WHY, YOU—
OH, NO!
HALF A HORSE! THIS IS TOO MUCH!
I MUST SEE A DOCTOR—BUT QUICK!

EEEK!
MERCY! YOU STARTLED ME!
HOW DARE YOU SCARE A LADY?
PEST!
I WON'T BELIEVE IT! THOSE THINGS ARE OBSOLETE!
I MUST BE UNDER A HYPNOTIC INFLUENCE



SCARED, EH?
I'M NOT THAT GOOD!
I KNEW IT!" I'M UNDER A WITCH'S SPELL!
POOR LITTLE KITTEN-HES TREMBLING IN TERROR!
I CAN'T TAKE IT!
DON'T BE FRIGHTENED! YOU'LL BE ALL RIGHT!
THAT FAIRY MADE ME FEEL FINE!



NOW THAT I'M NORMAL AGAIN, I'LL PROCEED WITH MY HUNTING!
MAYBE THAT FAIRY WILL BRING ME LUCK!
COME OUT! I GOT YA!
YOU WOULDN'T SHOOT A TEENY BUNNY LIKE ME, WOULD YOU?
YOU WANT A HUGE RABBIT LIKE THE ONE THAT JUST WENT BY THANKS FOR THE TIP!
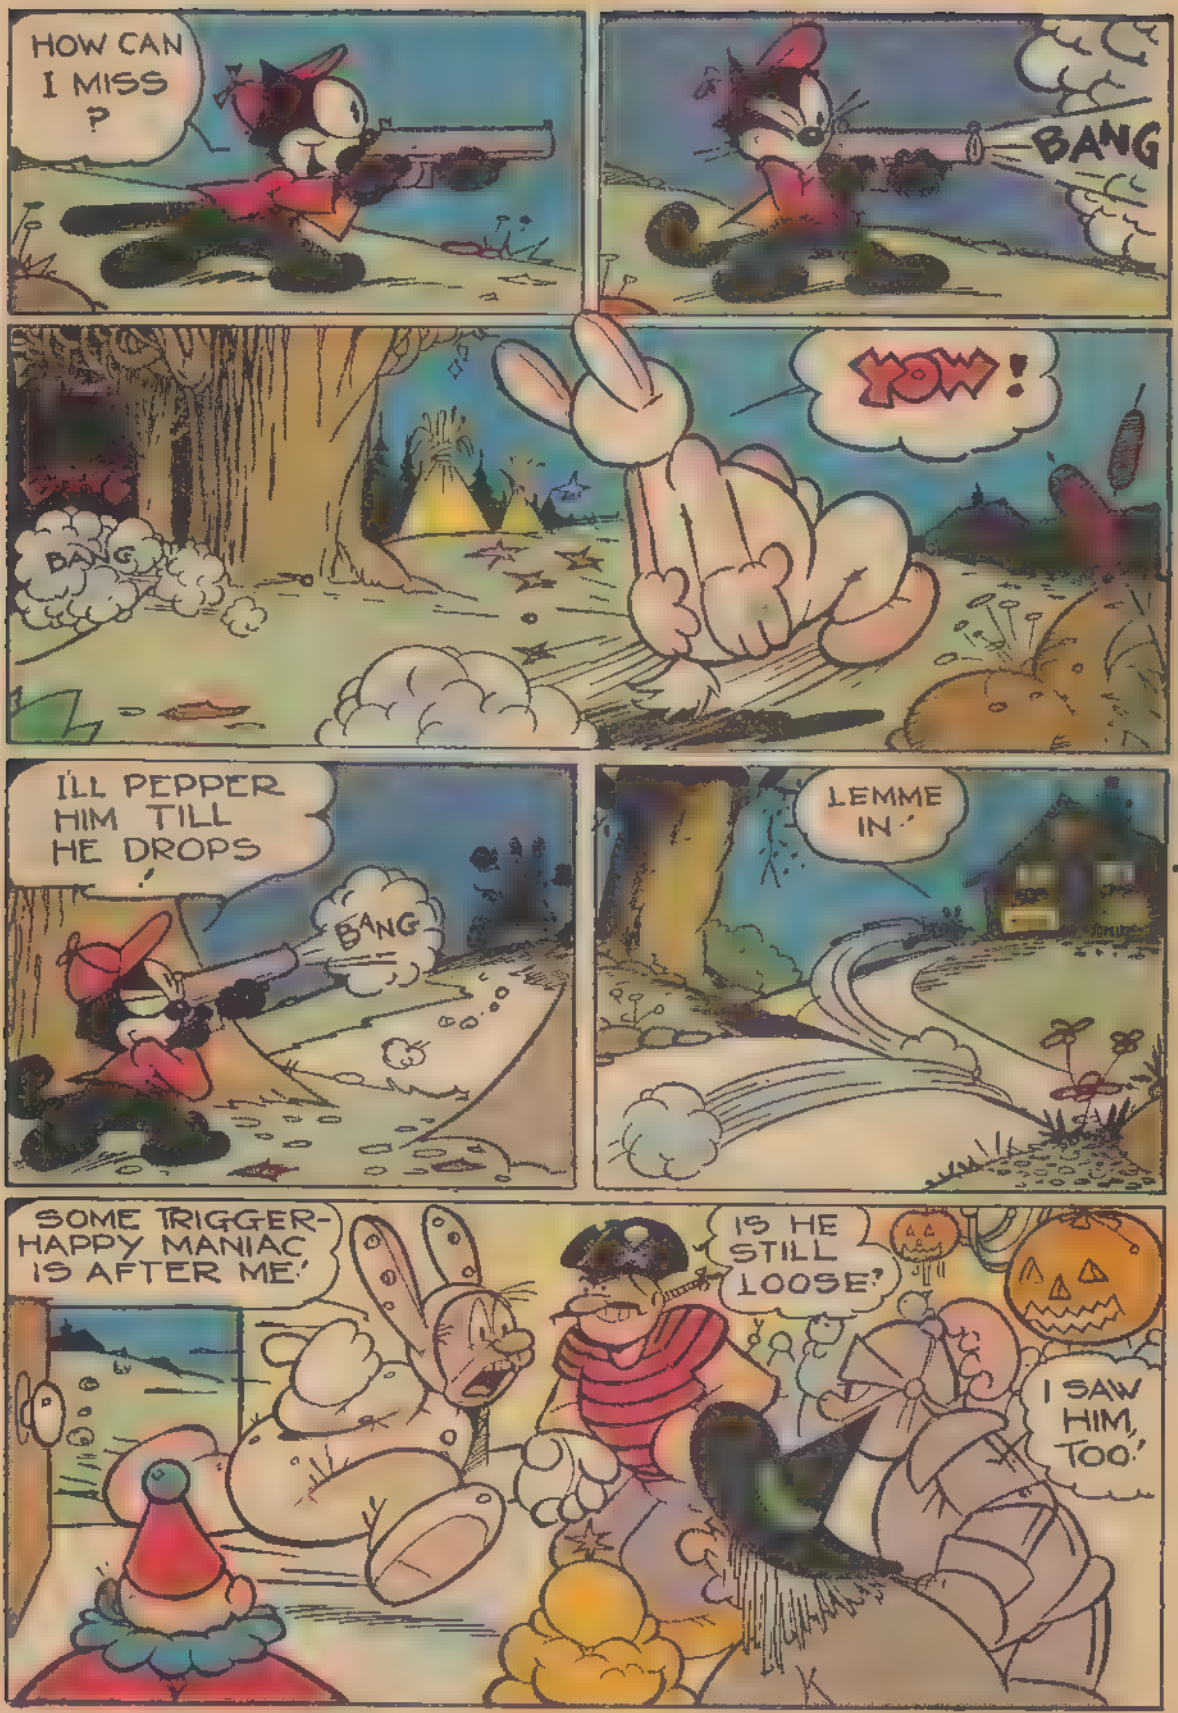
DON'T MENTION IT!
YOW! THAT'S RABBIT STEW FOR A MONTH



HOW CAN I MISS ?
BANG
YOW!
BANG
I'LL PEPPER HIM TILL HE DROPS!
BANG
LEMME IN!
SOME TRIGGER-HAPPY MANIAC IS AFTER ME!
IS HE STILL LOOSE?
I SAW HIM, TOO!

HE GOT THE COPS TO BEAT ME UP!
HE SHOT MY HEAD-PIECE!
HE ANNOYED MY GUESTS!
HE TORE MY COSTUME!
A MASQUERADE PARTY — I'D BETTER SCRAM!
AFTER HIM!
HE RUINED OUR PARTY!
HOME AND SAFE!
BED IS ALL THE ADVENTURE I WANT IN THE FUTURE

Felix the Cat was sitting comfortably near the cheery open fireplace, reading his newspaper. He sat there a while absorbed in the various news items, when suddenly his eyes widened with excitement. He looked at one particular news item very closely. He read it over again to make sure that he was reading it correctly.

"This calls for action right away!" Felix said to himself grimly.

He threw the newspaper onto the chair and ran into the pantry. From a cupboard he took two large wicker baskets. Taking these, he ran out of the house and into the woods.

The forest looked beautiful in its rich autumn hues, but Felix paid little heed to the beauties of the forest. Instead he raced along the winding path through the wood. Brambles clung to him, low branches scraped across his face, and once he stumbled as some loose pebbles gave away under his weight. None of these things stopped him in his haste.

"I've got to get there before they do," he said to himself. "I'm almost there now."

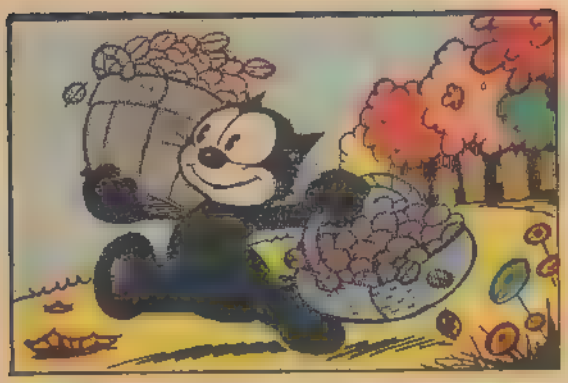
Felix ran a short distance farther and breathlessly came to a stop beneath a very tall straight tree. He climbed up the thick trunk of the tree until he reached the first heavy branch. He propped one of the baskets on the branch and reached deep into a hollow in the tree. He scooped out several handfuls of nuts which had been hidden there by the squirrels in the forest. After dumping the nuts into the basket, he scampered back to the ground, picked up the empty basket which he had left there and hastily ran to another tree.

Felix went to many other trees, each time finding the hiding place where the squirrels had hoarded their nuts for the winter. After running from tree to tree for some time, the first basket was brimming over with nuts. Felix then proceeded to continue collecting all the nuts he could find until the second basket was as full as the first one. Felix was satisfied that he had collected all the nuts stored in the forest.

"There, that's done," Felix smiled to himself. For the first time that day, Felix stopped rushing. He picked up the two baskets which were very heavy, and walked carefully back home. He did not notice though that his visits to the last few trees had been watched by Sammy Squirrel. Sammy kept his eyes on Felix, and darted from tree to tree so as to avoid being seen. He looked with alarm upon discovering that Felix was taking all the nuts that belonged to the squirrels. "Golly!" Sammy whispered to himself, "Felix has taken the nuts that we have been saving all summer!"

Sammy Squirrel ran back through the forest with the speed of the wind. He kept on running until he saw Willie Woodpecker. He skidded to a stop and cried, "Call a meeting of the squirrels! A terrible emergency has come about. Please hurry, there's no time to lose!"

Willie Woodpecker tapped out a message against a tree, calling all the squirrels to meet. The tapping of Willie's beak could be heard all over the forest. As soon as the squirrels heard it, they stopped whatever they were doing, wherever they were and ran to the meeting place.



In a few minutes, all the squirrels of the forest were clustered around Sammy who was excitedly shouting, "Felix the Cat has taken all of our winter food supply! I saw him with my own eyes, running from tree to tree, and scooping out all the nuts that we had put away. He put them into two baskets, and took them home with him!"

"Felix knows better than to act like that," one of the older squirrels said.

"Let's all go to Felix's house right away and settle this," Sammy Squirrel said angrily.

With this, the whole group of squirrels started to make their way through the forest towards Felix's house.

As the squirrels ran towards Felix's house, they heard the crashing and splintering of wood. Loud buzzing noises and shouts could be heard. It was as if the whole forest had gotten angry and was growling at what Felix had done. Finally the angry squirrels had reached the edge of the forest where Felix had his house. Sammy banged upon the door vigorously. A few seconds later, Felix answered the door.

"Come in, I've been expecting you," said Felix with a smile.

"I'll bet you have," said Sammy curtly. "We thought that you were our friend."

"I am your friend," said Felix as he looked at the scowling faces of all the squirrels, "That's why—"

Sammy Squirrel broke in, "You have a strange way of showing friendship then. Do you realize what you have done?"

"Of course I do," said Felix, "Those nuts—"

"What will become of us this winter if we don't have those nuts to eat?" Sammy asked. "Why are you so selfish Felix? Don't you think of us?"

"But I AM thinking of you," Felix answered as he picked up the newspaper that he had been reading that morning, "Look here and see for yourselves."

The squirrels crowded around the paper and read a big black headline: "FOREST TO BE CUT DOWN FOR LUMBER TODAY"

"And here, look out of the window," Felix pointed towards the forest.

As they all crowded to the open window, the noise of chopping and sawing could be heard plainly. Every few seconds a deafening crash could be heard as the gigantic trees toppled to the ground. There was already a large patch of tree stumps where the hard-working lumberjacks had been clearing the wood.

"You see," Felix said with a wise smile, "when I read that the forest was going to be destroyed, I knew that I had to act quickly. There wasn't time to get all of you together to tell you, so I just ran to the hiding-places and saved all your nuts for you. Here they are, quite safe in the baskets."

"Hooray! Felix saved us!" the squirrels all shouted together.

"Gosh," Sammy Squirrel said with his eyes downcast with shame, "I thought—"

"Never mind what you thought," Felix said. "The important thing is that you won't have to worry about your food this winter."

"Thanks to Felix we won't have to go hungry!" Sammy shouted as all the squirrels happily cheered with joy.
